

Welcome to your Workplace Insights report. You were asked to take assessments powered by Criteria Corp, and this report provides an overview of your personalised results. All of your responses were combined to create a unique profile for you. Within the report, it's important to know that there are no "good" or "bad" qualities. The results are designed to help you heighten your self-awareness and to understand how to relate better to others in the workplace.

Haroun's Report Summary

Haroun General Population

Attitudes & Outlook

Work Habits

Temperament

Interaction Style

Notable Traits

You can be described as:

Motivated

Likely seen by others as committed and driven

Assertive

Bold, forceful and sometimes dominant presence; not inclined to defer

Extroverted

Socially outgoing, gregarious, often initiates social interactions

Competitive

Innate drive to win, measures performance in comparison to others

Work, Communication & Interaction Style

Goal-Oriented.

You tend to be goal-oriented and intent on meeting or exceeding the expectations set for you. You have good follow-through on tasks when engaged with your work.

Very Motivated.

You are likely to have a very strong inner drive, which should see you viewed as driven and committed. Team members will generally describe you as motivated to achieve your goals.

Very Extroverted.

You are much more extroverted than most, and people would likely describe you as sociable, lively, and gregarious. You are likely to prioritise social interactions, which may mean that you prefer roles and activities where you can frequently interact with others. You are likely very energetic and enthusiastic and should feel comfortable initiating social interactions, even with strangers.

Very Conscientious.

You are likely to be self-disciplined, careful, and dependable in work settings. You are highly persistent, hard-working, and tend to be organised and structured in your work style. You are likely attentive to detail and inclined to follow the rules. Across a wide range of job roles, high conscientiousness scores are linked to good performance in the workplace.

Very Assertive.

You are very comfortable leading group discussions and openly speak your mind, with colleagues likely describing you as having a direct style of expression. You have a strong preference for an open and undiluted approach when voicing your opinion.

Temperament, Attitudes & Outlook

Very Competitive.

Compared to most people, you have a very strong drive to win. You are likely to be highly motivated by competition and will strive to meet and exceed external targets. In work settings, highly competitive individuals often excel in fields such as sales but are sometimes less well suited to roles like customer service.

Problem Solving

When solving problems at work, you are likely to strike a balance between relying on conventional, tried and true methods as well as experimenting with new concepts and ideas from time to time. Additionally, you are likely to take a methodical and structured approach to solving problems. When solving problems at work, you are likely to see the benefits of experimenting with new concepts and ideas, and may be less likely to rely on conventional, tried and true methods.

People can vary in the skills they rely on to solve problems. Some may be better at solving written and verbal problems, some may be better with numerical and number-based problems, while others are better at problems that are abstract, spatial or conceptual in nature. Knowing which of these areas is stronger for you can help you to apply your strengths when solving problems at work.

Your strengths are likely to be in the area of numerical or number based problems. You may be more comfortable thinking about problems in a numerical form.

Common problem solving situations involving the use of numerical information include:

- Drawing conclusions from tables or lists of numbers.
- Interpreting statistical information.
- Conducting numerical analyses.
- Interpreting numerical information presented in tables, charts and graphs.

Strengths & Potential Challenges

Strengths

- You will generally have good follow-through and be attentive to goals.
- Highly conscientious individuals like you tend to excel in a wide variety of roles, situations, and industries.
- You are a highly motivated person with a strong inner drive.
- You are highly competitive by nature, with an innate desire to win, which will serve you well in roles where performance measurement is valued. You are comfortable taking risks when required.
- You are direct and open when expressing your opinion. You will speak your mind.
- Lively, sociable, and gregarious, you are comfortable meeting new people and likely prioritise social interactions.
- You are likely to display an effective balance of patience and impatience in pursuing opportunities or navigating frustrations with work-related tasks or projects.
- A high level of self-confidence suggests you will generally be free from self-doubt.

Potential Challenges

- Your highly competitive nature may, at times, be seen by others as unfriendly. You should find ways to ensure you are competing as a team towards shared goals, as opposed to competing against your team mates.
- Your frank and direct style of expression may at times be viewed by others as too strong.

Development Suggestions

Work Habits

Achievement-oriented by nature, you will benefit from being challenged to achieve even greater effectiveness in a role and to look for opportunities to further refine your strengths and apply them for greater impact.

Your exacting, precise, and organised approach to work will be beneficial in many tasks, but you do run the risk of being perceived as inflexible at times. Allowing for some flexibility and uncertainty in your projects, plans and approaches may be beneficial. It's possible that you may be so focused on the details, or on having everything perfect, that you lose sight of the bigger picture. Your style also runs the risk of being perceived as micromanaging people or processes, so allowing others additional flexibility and freedom from time to time may also be beneficial.

Your strong inner motivation and drive are likely to see you do well in a variety of tasks, even in tasks that you do not find intrinsically enjoyable. This strong inner drive can be best utilised in high impact activities where your motivation should see you achieving strong outcomes.

Interaction Style

It may be useful to consider when your strong and direct approach may and may not be the most appropriate or effective way of interacting. While this approach can be beneficial at times, being overly assertive can alienate others and impact relationships at work. Finding a balance between expressing your views and inviting others to share their thoughts can help facilitate meaningful and productive collaboration.

As a highly extroverted person, you may need to be careful that you do not dominate meetings and other social events by talking too much. You may sometimes be prone to capturing the attention of a group when it would be better to give others a chance to shine. It may take effort for you to let others share the focus and attention of a group, but making this effort can help build relationships with others. You may also find it hard to maintain your energy while working on solitary tasks. You may need to manage the time you spend interacting with others in order to ensure that solitary tasks can be completed.

Problem Solving

You are likely to be most effective at solving numerical problems. One way to develop your effectiveness in problem solving may be to approach problems from a numerical perspective. This could be done by expressing or framing problems in quantities, charts or graphs and using that information as a basis for problem solving.

Temperament

While there is a time and a place for healthy competition, there is also a risk that being highly competitive may have a negative impact on developing good relationships with others. It may be beneficial for you to consider using your energy and enthusiasm for success to help others in their attainment of goals. This may help you foster valuable working relationships. You may also benefit from understanding that it's OK to lose and to fail - doing so can encourage growth, build resilience, and help shape future goals.

Persisting is an important characteristic in the accomplishment of tasks and deliverables. However, there may be times when trying a different approach is more beneficial than just trying harder in the same direction. Knowing when to step back and assess the effectiveness of one's approach, and being open to persisting in a new direction, can meaningfully contribute to accomplishing your objectives.

Attitudes & Outlook

Knowing when to take a creative approach is important to accomplishing goals. However, there are also times when using tried and true methods are best for getting things done. The balance is in understanding the situation at hand, quickly learning the relevant history of what has already been attempted, and capitalising on the more effective strategy.

When approaching a new task you may feel more confidence than is warranted. It's important to ensure that your confidence and self-assurance do not inhibit your willingness to prepare in advance. Often, success is the result of planning and effort.

Workplace Stressors & Motivators

The following section relates common workplace situations to your behavioural preferences, to better understand how your potential may be best realised. Situations that may be comfortable or motivating for some people may be stressful or de-motivating for others. Below is a list of common workplace situations together with an indication of how each may impact you.

